CURRENT CATALOG DESCRIPTION:

A detailed examination either of a major area of philosophical inquiry (such as metaphysics, theory of knowledge) or of a specialized topic within one of these areas (such as the philosophy of space and time, the nature of causality, mathematical logic). This course is repeatable for credit.

PROPOSED CATALOG DESCRIPTION (no longer than 75 words): leave blank if no changes are being proposed to the catalog description. NOTE: information about prerequisites should NOT appear in the catalog description.)

An advanced examination of a central topic, movement or figure in either the history of philosophy or contemporary philosophy. This course is repeatable for credit with different topics.

RATIONALE FOR CHANGE:

1. Recommended Preparation change: The proposed change would capture the key point that PHIL 499 is at a higher level than 300 level courses, and so we are recommending that students have taken at least one 300 level course before taking PHIL 499 – not simply any two philosophy courses, as with the current Recommended Preparation (which is consistent with having taken two 100 level courses).
2. Prerequisite change: Currently this course had no prerequisites at all, but it is at a higher level (400 level) than our 300 level courses, yet all of our 300s require one course in philosophy with a grade of C or better or permission of the instructor. This makes little sense. We are altering the prerequisites for all of our 400 level courses in this way in order to encourage enrollment but still require some philosophy background.
3. Description change: We prefer the more general and more flexible proposed description because it better captures the variety of courses that we have regularly been offering under PHIL 499. The proposed description also clarifies that it can be repeated only with different topics.
4. PHIL 499 is identical in content to PHIL 498. They should have identical catalog descriptions.
