Rationale:

For Freshman/early Sophomores, PSYC 211 is an appropriate orientation to and preparation for the Psychology major; the “Four Year Academic Pathway” plan for the B.S. in Psychology recommends that PSYC 211 be taken second semester Freshman year. PSYC 310 Exploring Psychology: the Discipline and Careers is for more advanced (45+ credits) students who have passed at least two additional PSYC courses beyond PSYC 100. For these students, PSYC 310 will substitute for PSYC 211 in the foundational sequence (PSYC 100 → PSYC 310 → PSYC 311→PSYC 312). PSYC 310 will cover the same general topics as PSYC 211 (e.g. overview of the discipline and career opportunities; skills necessary for success in the Psychology major; academic planning and student support resources), but in greater depth and with emphases that suits the unique strengths and needs of these students.
