CURRENT CATALOG DESCRIPTION:

A practical investigation of the structure of up to three uncommonly taught languages, such as Czech, Gascon, Lithuanian, Mapudungun and Wolof. LING 310 and LING 320 are highly recommended.

PROPOSED CATALOG DESCRIPTION (no longer than 75 words): leave blank if no changes are being proposed to the catalog description. NOTE: information about prerequisites should NOT appear in the catalog description.)

A linguistic investigation of the structure of several uncommonly-taught languages. Students elicit language data from native-speaker informants, construct a corpus of data in IPA transcription, and analyze the data linguistically, applying principles acquired in previous LING courses.

RATIONALE FOR CHANGE:

Students are occasionally registering for the course without sufficient linguistic preparation to handle the material. Changing the former recommended preparation to a prerequisite should help address this issue. The new catalog description gives a more informative and accurate reflection of the course.
