This should be equal to the number of credits for courses that cannot be repeated for credit. For courses that may be repeated for credit, enter the maximum total number of credits a student can receive from this course. E.g., enter 6 credits for a 3 credit course that may be taken a second time for credit, but not for a third time. Please note that this does NOT refer to how many times a class may be retaken for a higher grade.

PROPOSED CATALOG DESCRIPTION (no longer than 75 words):

Drawing on historical and contemporary sources, this course is an introduction to and survey of the field of transgender studies with a particular emphasis on the intersection of the field with feminist and LGBTQ studies. While seeking to understand the emergence and varied lived experiences of transgender identities, the course also aims to teach students to think critically about the political, economic, ideological, and transnational lives of “transgender” as a concept.

RATIONALE FOR NEW COURSE:

a. There are currently no courses offered at UMBC that explicitly explore the field of transgender studies. This is a growing area of scholarship in Gender and Women’s Studies that students across campus need to be able to access. Students have requested a course such as this one, and we feel it is essential not just for the academic integrity of our curriculum, but also to meet student demand.

b. The course is likely to be taught every other year.

c. The course strengthens departmentally-controlled offerings for the Critical Sexuality Studies minor and appropriately responds to a growing field of study within our discipline.

d. The course will serve primarily upper division students who are majors or minors in our department as well as the wider campus community interested in these issues.

e. The course is offered at the 200 level to serve as an introduction to transgender studies.

f. Course is not repeatable for credit.

ATTACH COURSE OUTLINE (mandatory):
Course Description
This course is an introduction to and survey of the field of transgender studies. The course is divided into three units that each offer a different approach to understanding this field of study. Part I: Introducing Terms exposes students to the core vocabularies and theoretical landscapes of transgender studies. Special attention will be paid to the intersection of transgender studies with both feminist and queer studies. Part II: Telling Transgender Stories offers students a critical perspective on the role of memoir and self-telling in the formation of transgender identities as well as political, social, and medical expectations for transgender people to “tell the truth” about themselves. This unit also gives students an opportunity to think critically about the differences between memoir, fiction, and truth. Part III: States of Transgender takes a different turn, looking at the role of the state in constructing, normalizing, transnationalizing, and policing gender identities. Particular attention will be paid in this section to transgender activist movements and visions for building a more just world for all of us.

Course Goals and Objectives
Students who complete this course will:

1. demonstrate a sophisticated understanding of new theoretical terms and concepts by completing 3-4 page argumentative response papers following each of three units.
2. learn to debate controversial issues in contemporary gender politics by participating in a series of debates based on current events.
3. synthesize and reflect on the role of transgender studies in the broader landscape of media, popular culture, and politics by completing a final reflective essay connecting course material to current events.

Course Requirements

Debate 25 points
Students will participate in one of three scheduled debates. Topics may include: laws concerning gender and bathroom use; housing antidiscrimination ordinances; the medicalization of transgender identities; and others. Teams will be assigned in the third week of the semester. Guidelines will be provided separately.

Unit Response Papers 60 points (20 points each)
Students will complete short 3-4 page response papers based on questions that arise during each unit of the course. Prompts will be provided in advance and exams are due to be uploaded to Blackboard no later than 5:00PM on the day they are due. The Unit One paper is due October 5; the Unit Two paper is due November 2; and the Unit Three paper is due December 7.

Final Reflective Essay 15 points
Students will complete a final 3-4 page reflective essay connecting course themes to a current event of their choosing. Guidelines will be provided in advance.

Required Texts
Imogen Binnie, Nevada
Kate Bornstein, Gender Outlaw
Christine Jorgensen, Christine Jorgensen: A Personal Autobiography

These books are available for purchase at the UMBC Bookstore in the Commons. They are also on reserve at the library. Other readings will be provided on Blackboard (marked BB) or via databases at the Albin O. Kuhn Library (marked Academic Search Complete).

All assignments must be uploaded to Blackboard by the assigned due date and time in order to earn full credit. I will accept papers for up to two days after the due date. (If a paper is due on Wednesday, I will accept it until Friday.) For each day the paper is late, however, you will be penalized 1/3 of a letter grade. (If a paper that is due on Monday is turned in on Wednesday, it will receive a grade of B- if the paper grade was originally a B+). A grade of zero will be assigned to papers received after that date.

Course Policies
The success of this course depends largely on our mutual commitment to come to class prepared to discuss the readings. You can’t do this if you aren’t in class; to this end, you may miss three sessions without penalty. Each subsequent class missed lowers your final grade by a third of a grade. If you miss more than six classes you will automatically fail the course. Please contact me immediately in the case of medical leave or other emergencies that will result in excessive absences so that we can figure out a way for you to successfully complete the course.

When you are in class I expect you to be an active participant. This doesn’t mean just talking a lot. Listening, writing, and leading small group work are all parts of being an active participant in your own learning as well as that of others. It also means turning off your cell phones during class. Students will be given one warning to stop cell phone use; subsequent use will result in being asked to leave class for the day, and this will count as an absence. Laptop use is discouraged in the classroom, so unless you need to take notes on a laptop, leave the computer at home.

Student Integrity Policy
Please be aware that the unauthorized use of sources (using sources, either printed or from the Internet, without proper acknowledgement), unauthorized tutorial help or help from family and friends, and cheating will result in severe penalties and reporting through proper university channels. All work must follow the UMBC Honor Code. I have read hundreds of student papers over the years, and I will spot plagiarism. Don’t risk the penalties, and don’t cheat yourself of your education. Any and all infractions will be reported to the Academic Misconduct Management Database. Be sure to review the academic integrity resources at http://www.umbc.edu/undergrad_ed/ai/students.html and clarify any doubts with your instructor or a librarian before submitting work.
Accommodations
UMBC is committed to eliminating discriminatory obstacles that disadvantage students based on disability. Student Support Services (SSS) is the UMBC department designated to receive and maintain confidential files of disability-related documentation, certify eligibility for services, determine reasonable accommodations, develop with each student plans for the provision of such accommodations, and serve as a liaison between faculty members and students regarding disability-related issues. If you have a disability and want to request accommodations, contact SSS in the Math/Psych Bldg., room 213 or at 410-455-2459. SSS will require you to provide appropriate documentation of disability. If you require accommodations for this class, make an appointment to meet with me to discuss your SSS-approved accommodations.

This course will occasionally include material that can be difficult for some students with histories of trauma, including sexual violence, abuse, eating disorders. Please be advised that UMBC offers a full range of resources for students grappling with difficult experiences and feelings. If you experience (or have experienced) sexual violence, rape, stalking, or any kind of relationship violence, UMBC offers a range of services, and you are encouraged to connect to these resources at http://umbc.edu/rvap. Counseling services are available for students seeking support not just in response to trauma, but as general support. Please see http://www.umbc.edu/counseling/ to make an appointment.
