Course Description

From the New Culture Movement of 1917 to World War II, from literary journals to rock concerts, from self-expression to social engagement, poetry has played an integral role in remaking modern Chinese life. In this course, you will study the works of key poets, musicians, and revolutionaries who shaped the development of modern Chinese culture and history in the 20th century. Examining a range of materials such as poems, song lyrics, music (folk, classical, jazz, pop, rock, punk, hip hop), films, and scholarly essays, you will learn about modern Chinese lyrical culture as it evolved in China, Taiwan, and Hong Kong and its relationship with national and regional identities. While this course is designed for students with little or no prior knowledge of Chinese or Chinese culture, MLL 190, 191, 230 or 301 is recommended. Since this is an MLL course, all class discussions, assignments, and materials will be in English. Poems will be available in Chinese for those interested in reading the original.

Student Learning Outcomes

By the end of this course, you will be able to: (1) analyze modern Chinese poems using technical terms; (2) interpret modern Chinese poetry and music in their historical contexts; (3) recall major developments in modern Chinese history in the 20th century; and (4) improve your ability to think critically and write academic papers on literary topics. You are expected to work toward these goals, participate in all classroom activities, and complete all assignments in a timely manner.
Course Materials

1) Yellow Music, Andrew F. Jones
2) Cries of Joy, Songs of Sorrow, Marc L. Moskowitz
3) Sailing to Formosa, edited by Michelle Yeh, N. G. D. Malmqvist, and Xu Huizhi
4) Other required texts will be available as PDFs on BlackBoard

Teaching Method

This course is activity-based: you will spend the majority of class time discussing the texts, doing scaffolding assignments, responding to reading questions, free-writing, and sharing your written work. The poems themselves are not long, but you will need to spend time learning about the poem's historical background and its reception by scholars. This course is not only about poetry, but also the culture of poetry. Therefore, I expect you to understand the context in which the poems were produced and received.

Classroom Expectations

- After class, you can make or receive phone calls, text, sleep, eat, check your emails, surf on the Internet, solve your crossword puzzle, etc.
- We're in a learning environment, so let's keep the atmosphere positive.
- As we explore different ideas in class, make sure you explain how your comments and questions are relevant to the discussion.

In-class Participation (15%)
To do well in this category, you need to attend class regularly and participate actively. You will receive up to 5 points per class session and 0 for absences. Absences are excusable on a case-by-case basis, only if you email me at least one day in advance. Let me know, if emergencies or planned events require you to be absent for an extended period of time.

Midterm Exam (30%)
The Midterm Exam will take place in class on 3/15. No early or make-up exams.

Academic or Creative Project (15%)
You will be asked to present an Academic or Creative Project. Academic Projects should analyze an aspect of modern Chinese lyrical culture such as poetry or musical performance. Creative Projects may include music videos, concept albums, short films, games, visual art, architectural designs, sculptures, etc. Your grade will be based on the conceptual design, quality of execution, and effort. You must work on the Academic Project individually, while you may work on the Creative Project individually or as a team. You must present your plan to the instructor and receive his approval before starting an Academic or Creative Project. If you work as a team, you need to submit a list of teammates by 4/17. Members of each team will usually receive the same grade, so make sure you communicate well and divide the work in a fair manner. Presentations will be on 5/8 (for individuals) and 5/10 (for teams).

Term Paper (40%)

You can submit your Term Paper (2,500 words) at any time during the semester. The paper should focus on materials covered in this course. If you submit your paper by 4/19, you will receive extensive feedback and have the option to resubmit it once for re-grading. After 4/19, you will still be able to submit the paper, but your paper will receive standard comments and no re-grading option. All papers and revisions are due on 5/19 at 3pm.

Grading Policy

Assignments will be lowered one (1) full letter grade per calendar day late. Assignments may be lowered a portion of a letter grade, if received late on the due date. If you need an extension for any reason, contact the instructor well before the due date.

UMBC Statement of Values for Academic Integrity

“By enrolling in this course, each student assumes the responsibilities of an active participant in UMBC’s scholarly community in which everyone’s academic work and behavior are held to the highest standards of honesty. Cheating, fabrication, plagiarism, and helping others to commit these acts are all forms of academic dishonesty, and they are wrong. Academic misconduct could result in disciplinary action that may include, but is not limited to, suspension or dismissal.”

Changes to the Syllabus

The instructor may make adjustments to the syllabus as needed. All changes will be announced and discussed before they are finalized.

Weekly Class Schedule

The following class schedule lists the materials that you will need to read (or view or listen to) in their entirety before each class session. I carefully select the readings to keep them to about 100 pages per week. Therefore, you are expected to read everything. No materials are optional. To help you prioritize them, they are listed in descending order of importance: the first one introduces you to the poems, and the last one provides more detailed information. I will upload the poetry packets and song lists weekly.
