CURRENT CATALOG DESCRIPTION:

An advanced course in the creative and collaborative process of theatre-making. Students participate as directors, designers, writers, adapter and performers to create works in a process that allows for a deeper investigation of performance style, genres or methods. Students, in consultation with the instructor, design appropriate research activities and develop ensemble methods to create their performance pieces. This is a non-production focused course; the semester culminates in a presentation of works-in-progress. Recommended Course Preparation: THTR 202 and THTR 244 and 200-level design. This course is repeatable for a maximum of 6 credits or 2 attempts.

PROPOSED CATALOG DESCRIPTION

An advanced course in the creative and collaborative process of theatre-making. Students participate as directors, designers, writers, adapter and performers to create works in a process that allows for a deeper investigation of performance style, genres or methods. Students, in consultation with the instructor, design appropriate research activities and develop ensemble methods to create their performance pieces. This is a non-production focused course; the semester culminates in a presentation of works-in-progress.

RATIONALE FOR CHANGE:

With the appropriate change of Theatre Ensemble I to a 300-level course, Theatre Ensemble II becomes THTR 405 with THTR 305 as a prerequisite.
