CURRENT CATALOG DESCRIPTION:
The analysis of major theatrical works from various theoretical perspectives. The purpose of the course is to enable actors, directors, designers and critics to acquire analytic tools necessary to decode the dramatic text and to apply that knowledge to production. Coursework will range from literary and structural analysis to acted excerpts, design renderings and production concepts. Note: may be repeated once for credit. Required of all theatre majors.

PROPOSED CATALOG DESCRIPTION (Approximately 75 words in length. Please use full sentences): leave blank if no changes are being proposed to the catalog description. NOTE: information about prerequisites should NOT appear in the catalog description.)
The analysis of major theatrical works from various theoretical perspectives. The skills acquired build on earlier coursework and provide the analytic tools necessary to decode dramatic texts and to apply that knowledge to production. Coursework will range from literary and structural analysis to acted excerpts, design renderings and production concepts. This core course is required of all theatre majors.

RATIONALE FOR CHANGE: This change represents a correction to the classification of the course, rather than a change in the content. This course requires 100 or 200 level preparation and high levels of analysis, synthesis, collaboration and artistic interpretation. Rightfully, it should it be credited as an upper-level course.

SCRIPT ANALYSIS

Course Description: The analysis of major theatrical works from various theoretical perspectives. The skills acquired build on earlier coursework and provide the analytic tools necessary to decode dramatic texts and to apply that knowledge to production. Coursework will range from literary and structural analysis to acted excerpts, design renderings and production concepts. This core course is required of all theatre majors.

This is an upper level analysis course designed to provide student designers, directors, actors, playwrights, critics and theatre practitioner with the tools and skills necessary to create inspired interpretations of play texts. We will also be studying research methods in theatre and doing original research in the library. THE COURSE IS A SEMINAR AND WILL BE CONDUCTED AS SUCH. That is to say each play will be studied in depth. We will all contribute to the detailed analysis of the text.

This course demands a high level of written and oral communication. In every class, you will be asked to communicate your analytical and creative ideas to others.

This course fulfills GEP Arts and Humanities (AH).
It teaches students to critically evaluate and interpret plays and to directly engage in interpretive theatrical experiences.

Attendance Policy and Participation:
This is a practical class, and attendance is critical to the successful completion of the course. More than two missed classes will result in the lowering of the student's grade by one letter. More than three absences will result in a “F” for the course. In cases of absence, it is the student’s responsibility to get a copy of any missed materials from a peer BEFORE the following class period. Missed in-class assignments are due at the beginning of the next class period. You must turn it in to me at the beginning of class to receive credit. Know that there will be a penalty for these missed assignments at the professor's discretion. Participation: This is a seminar style course. You are expected to prepare for and to speak in every class!

Academic Integrity:
I expect that you all work will be your own creative/intellectual property and that any sources that you use will be properly cited in your written work and presentations. Details information about what constitutes academic misconduct at http://www.umbc.edu/undergrad_ed/ai/documents/ACC2011.pdf
Required Texts and Reading:

Please note: YOU MUST HAVE THE PLAY TEXT WE ARE STUDYING WITH YOU FOR EVERY CLASS!

Backwards and Forwards: A Technical Manual for Reading Plays, 1983, David Ball. (available on Blackboard)
Macbeth—any copy or etext available
The Importance of Being Ernest—any copy or etext available
Angels in America—widely anthologized and available for online purchase
Footfalls—on Blackboard

Final Paper and Presentation—
The Paper:
The paper is to be a detailed formal analysis of the play. You may do a play with which you are already familiar or a play you want to work on one day. Choose a play that will be an interesting project FOR YOU!

A formal analysis should include:

* Analysis of the plays dramatic structure—
  How does the dramatic action and the story unfold?
  What devices does the playwright use to tell that action?
  Whose play is it? How do you know?
  How does the action tell the antagonist’s story?
Character analysis based in action!
  What does the action of the play/the conflict(s)/the characters actions reveal?
  What does his or her language reveal?
What is the theme (or themes) or the moral of the play based on these actions and this language?
  You MUST use the scholarship from outside research to support your reading/analysis of the play!

The paper should be 7-10 pages and will be worth 30 points, the presentation 10 points

The Presentation:
The presentation of your play should be approximately 10 minutes and will be worth 10 points. The presentation will be easily made from a solid outline of your paper (which I will guide you through in class.) You will in effect be taking on the role of the dramaturg, outlining the plays dramatic “roadmap.” So these presentations have a bit of an “edge” to them. I would like you to imagine that you are “pitching” this play to a theatre company--perhaps so that you can direct, design, “star” in it. Be a daramturgical advocate for this play and how it will work in production!
