This course develops the student’s ability to generate movement through creative exploration of dance’s relationship to space, time, weight, energy, patterns, form, and non-traditional performance spaces. Through an increased awareness of the physicality of the body and its potential for movement expression, students expand their ability to invent and structure movement.

RATIONALE FOR CHANGE:

1. Recommended Course Preparation and Prerequisite note:

Currently students are not required to have any course preparation and can take DANC 230 with little to no dance experience, as long as they are enrolled in a ballet or contemporary technique course at any level. It can be dangerous for absolute beginners (those enrolled in DANC 110 Beginning Contemporary Dance Technique I, or DANC 116 Ballet I) to be dancing in close proximity to others in this class. Students who are beyond the level of DANC 110 will enter the class with a foundation of basic dance skills that are reliable with a C or better, and have greater potential for success in the class. Most dance majors enter to UMBC with dance training beyond the level of DANC 110 or DANC 116, and will be able to enroll in the class with permission, as long as they are concurrently enrolled in any of the courses listed in the revised requirement group.

4. Consent Required:

Consent is not in the list of changes. Changing to a consent-required course will allow the department to admit freshmen entering UMBC with significant dance training.
