RATIONALE FOR CHANGE:

Prerequisites and Corequisites: DANC 330 Dance Composition begins the student's in depth study of choreographic methods and applications. The prerequisite of DANC 230 Improvisation prepares them for this by increasing their range of movement choices, and developing their ability to structure movement within a context of creative exploration. The prerequisite of DANC 310 Intermediate Contemporary Dance Technique I ensures that students have experienced the rigor of complex movement sequences beyond the beginning level.

This course requires a corequisite. Current co-requisite requires students to be enrolled in an intermediate or above level dance technique course in order to maintain their physical practice and conditioning. This is because the composition class is concerned with movement invention and the generation of movement sequences and structures, and is not focused on conditioning. Students who are not maintaining their physical practice/dance conditioning are at risk of injury.
