PROPOSED CATALOG DESCRIPTION (Approximately 75 words in length. Please use full sentences.):

This course explores feminist theories and practices in the art world, focusing on artists from Europe, the U.S.A., and Latin America. We begin with the premise that in any era and culture where systems of inequality exist, there are always people who challenge, intervene, and change their societies. Instead of viewing these artists as "ahead of their time," we study them as agents of social change who are vitally part of their time.

RATIONALE FOR NEW COURSE

- Why is there a need for this course at this time? There is a need for more diverse course options that include decolonizing perspectives. In the study of art history in the U.S., artists who are women have been historically left out of the canon of "great" artists. This course is essential to present feminist perspectives and artists who are women as integral to the study of art history. This course will be part of the Art History Concentration in the Visual Arts department.
- How often is the course likely to be taught? The course will likely be taught at least once a year.
- How does this course fit into your department's curriculum? This course will be part of the Art History Concentration in the Visual Arts department.
- What primary student population will the course serve? Students from the departments of Visual Arts, History, American Studies, Gender, Women's, and Sexuality Studies, and students from any department fulfilling the Arts and Humanities or Culture requirements for graduation would be served by this course.
- Why is the course offered at the level (ie. 100, 200, 300, or 400 level) chosen? The assigned readings and writing assignments for this course are at the 300 level.
- Explain the appropriateness of the recommended course preparation(s) and prerequisite(s). The prerequisite ART216

Studies in Visual Culture (Prehistory through the 1750s) or ART221 Art History II provide a foundation in terms of background knowledge of art history and visual culture for this 300 level course.

- g) Explain the reasoning behind the P/F or regular grading method. Since this course satisfies part of the requirement for the Art History Minor, this course will employ the regular grading method.
- h) Provide a justification for the repeatability of the course. This course cannot be repeated since the topic does not change each semester.
